Joining the University of Melbourne community

The University of Melbourne continues to strongly support our student community during the current COVID-19 pandemic and associated travel restrictions. Our students have been attending class through a virtual campus, and we're planning a gradual, phased and safe return to our physical campus.

The University is making COVID-19 vaccinations a requirement for attending our campuses to minimise the risk of COVID-19 to our community. This decision is based on public health advice and is aligned to the Victorian Government's roadmap, which currently states that on-site learning for adult education can re-commence during November for people who are fully vaccinated. Find out more When the time comes for you to join us in person on our physical campus, we will do everything we can to support you.

You can check our current student advice and support page for regular updates or find out more about how COVID-19 may affect future study at the University of Melbourne.
